VULCAN XH558's FINAL SEASON SERVICE

WALL OF HONOUR

Recognising those whose generous donations at Bronze, Silver and Gold levels helped fund XH558's final season service, allowing her to continue to be the world's last flying Vulcan.

2014/15 Winter servicing:

1) Reinstalling engine 620392 in the number 3 position. This engine had been removed in 2008 due to a higher than permitted metal debris count in its oil. In collaboration with Marshall Aerospace and Rolls-Royce the Trust instigated a programme to attempt recovery. Having changed two gearboxes thought to be possible sources of the debris particles, the engine would be put through a thorough testing regime.
2) The exhaust end caps are removed for examination, and to access the jet pipes.
3) The first of four jets pipes to be removed and checked over. Here Steve Hands, Ray Watts, Rick Lee and Mark Brown take a well-earned rest after removing the jet pipe onto the special trolley stand.
4–5) Lifting the cockpit canopy to access the crew ejector seats for servicing.
6) Steve Hands strips and resprays some panels, with the primed canopy ready for repainting seen in the background.
7) Ray Watts carries out inspections on all the engine connections.
8) With the aircraft on jacks undercarriage retraction is tested.
